Continually updating technology and adding new features to ensure we deliver the cutting-edge services the industry needs.

Building Products Index

BPI is the leading online UK building products locator serving the UK building and construction markets and is the largest and most detailed index in the market.

The technological leaders

BPI was established in 1965 to provide an outsourced library maintenance facility to in house libraries within architectural practices, local government and construction professionals such as surveyors and building contractors.

During the emergence of the internet, BPI was quick to capitalise on the benefits of electronic searching with the launch of its online product library www.bpindex.co.uk in 1997. The site quickly grew to become the largest, and the most comprehensive online building product index in the UK.

BPI continues to develop and improve the site, adding new features and technologies to improve the service for all.

Today BPI is used by millions of specifiers and construction professionals.

“ BPI has millions of visits, making it the market leading resource for construction professionals.”
